Benchmark reference answer

Question	When did women get the right to vote?
Essential The very minimum an answer needs to include. Comprises: • Any accurate answer to what the user asked for. • What the user needs to know in order to avoid being misled.	1918 - some, not all, women, got the right to vote for the first time. 1928 - women were given the right to vote on equal terms as men.
Good answer If the bare essentials aren't enough to meet an "average" user's needs. Comprises: • Information that further answers the user's question, but that goes beyond what is strictly "essential" This section is optional and is unnecessary for basic questions.	1918 - women had to be over the age of 30 and meet a qualification (Representation of the People Act, had to hold property or be a graduate voting in a university constituency or either be a member or married to a member of the local govt register). 1918 general election was the first time women could vote in an election 1928 - women over the age of 21 given right to vote. (Equal Franchise Act) 1929 general election was first with equal suffrage 1969 - women (and men) aged 18-21 given the right to vote (Representation of the People Act 1969) 1869 - women ratepayers allowed to vote in local municipal council elections.
Background Core facts relevant to the question — use as a reference guide for annotators.	8.5 million women got right to vote in 1918, 2/3rds of women in the UK In 1928 Equal Franchise Act increased number of women eligible to vote to 15 million The first general election in which women could vote in the UK was 14 December 1918, and 17 women ran as candidates. There's some evidence of some wealthy female polling in parliamentary elections before 1832; but these are very rare. Some examples of women voting in local elections up to the mid 19th century, prior to 1869. Between 1869-1900 single propertied women also allowed to vote in local elections, including county/borough councils (1888), parish/district councils (1894, married women also added). By 1900 almost 14% of local government electorate was female. New Zealand was the first self-governing country to grant all adult women the right to vote in 1893